

They'll be doing Gangnam Style next! David Cameron and Boris Johnson take part in a dance-off in hilarious spoof video

By PAUL MILLIGAN

PUBLISHED: 13:02, 8 December 2012 | UPDATED: 16:57, 8 December 2012

24
View comments

It's the time of year when we all indulge in a little spot of embarrassing dancing at Christmas parties.

And it seems political heavyweights David Cameron and Boris Johnson are no different to the rest of us.

SCROLL DOWN TO SEE THE FULL VIDEO

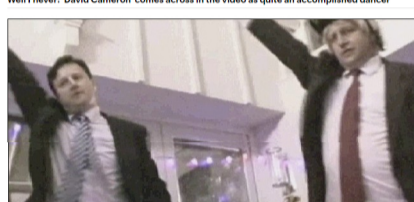

© Alison Jackson/Xbox/Rex Features

David Cameron and Boris Johnson are spotted dancing away to a video game in a new video

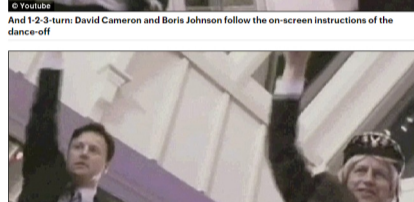

© Youtube

Well I never: 'David Cameron' comes across in the video as quite an accomplished dancer

© Youtube

And 1-2-3-turn: David Cameron and Boris Johnson follow the on-screen instructions of the dance-off

© Youtube

Reach for the stars: The dance battles continues in force

The Prime Minister and the London Mayor are spotted in a new video taking part in a very competitive 'dance-off'.

However, eagle-eyed viewers of the video will spot its not the real PM or Mayor, but lookalikes, created with the help of Alison Jackson.

Jackson is well-known for her BBC2 comedy show Double Take, which features a selection of famous lookalikes in unusual or comical situations.

The video is not as far fetched as it may first seem however.

In a keynote speech at the Conservative party conference in October, Boris Johnson told delegates: 'Gangnam Style is very good. The Prime Minister and I danced Gangnam Style the other day, you will be shocked to discover.'

The video was created to promote a new Xbox 360 game Dance Central 3.

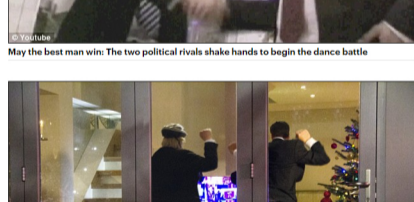

© Youtube

The clever spoof video begins with Boris in his trademark cycle and helmet and David Cameron entering his home to play the game

© Youtube

May the best man win: The two political rivals shake hands to begin the dance battle

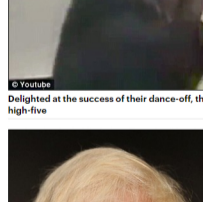

© Alison Jackson/Xbox/Rex Features

The spoof video, featuring lookalikes, is to promote a new Xbox 360 game called Dance Central 3

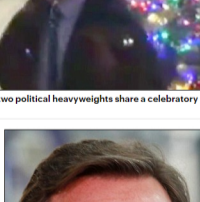

© Youtube

Delighted at the success of their dance-off, the two political heavyweights share a celebratory high-five

© Getty Images

© PA

The real Boris Johnson and David Cameron, Boris joked in October the pair had danced to Gangnam Style

Cam dancing: 'Dave' and 'Boris' strut their stuff

